1. This action is responsive to the application filed on August 28, 2001. Claims 1-21 are pending. Claims 1-21 represent method and apparatus directed toward customer premises equipment autoconfiguration.

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

3. Claims 11-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Wang et al., U.S. Patent No. 6,636,505.

Wang teaches the invention as claimed including a automatically provisioning broadband communication equipment (see abstract).

As to claim 11, Wang teaches customer premises equipment comprising:

A modem chipset configured to send and receive packets (see figs. 1-8; col. 5-7); an asynchronous transfer mode segmentation and reassembly module coupled to the modem chipset (see fig. 13); a memory coupled to the asynchronous transfer mode segmentation and reassembly module, the memory configured to store a plurality of sets of configuration values for the customer premises equipment (see col. 6-8); and a processor coupled to the memory capable of executing program instructions, the memory including a search module configured to determine which of the plurality of sets of configuration values if any is a correct set off configuration values for establishing communications between the customer premises equipment and the network access device (see col. 8-14).

As to claim 12, Wang teaches the system of claim 11 above, wherein the configuration values include VPI and VCI values (see col. 8-14).

As to claim 13, Wang teaches the system of claim 11 above, wherein the configuration values include ATM encapsulation types (see col. 8-14).

As to claim 14, Wang teaches the system of claim 11 above wherein the plurality of sets of configuration values is a subset of all possible configuration values (see col. 8-10).

As to claim 15, Wang teaches the system of claim 11 above wherein the plurality of sets of configuration values include configuration values commonly used to establish communications with broadband network access device (see col. 5-8).

As to claim 16, Wang teaches the system of claim 11 above, wherein the customer premises equipment is a broadband modem (see col. 8-11).

As to claim 17, Wang teaches the system of claim 16 above, wherein the broadband modem is a DSL modem (see col. 5-8).

As to claim 18, Wang teaches the system of claim 11 above, wherein the plurality of sets of configuration values is stored into the memory at the time of manufacture of the customer premises equipment (see col. 8-14).

As to claim 19, Wang teaches the system of claim 11 above, wherein the search module is configured to select one of the plurality of sets of configuration values and create a discover packet that the modem chipset transmits to a network access device (see col. 8-14).

As to claim 20, Wang teaches the system of claim 11 above, wherein the search module is configured to create a discover packet for each of the plurality of sets of configuration values, and the modem chipset is configured to transmit each of the discover packets to the network access device (see col. 7-12).

4. Claims 1-10, and 21 are allowed.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The prior art of record fails to teach either singly or in combination the claimed limitation of "transmitting a discover packet including a first set of configuration values and waiting for a predetermined time period to transmit a second discover packet including a different set of configuration values if an acknowledgment response is not received during the predetermined time period" as in claims 1-10, and 21.
